

Family Account

Invite other account members to log in to your Amilia personal account. Until now, one person managed all purchases and registrations for the household. Think: a parent signing up a child, or a spouse handling everything for the family.

Now, with Family Accounts, it's easier to share the load. You can invite a person (14+) from your account to create their own login. Once invited, they can:

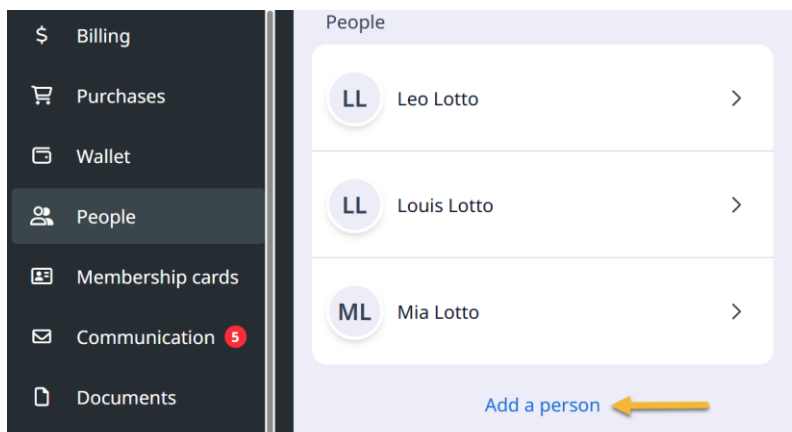

- View the full account
- Register themselves for activities
- Save their own payment method in their wallet and use it at checkout

Every person with full access must use their own saved payment method or pay with a credit card. For privacy and security, wallets are not shared between account members.

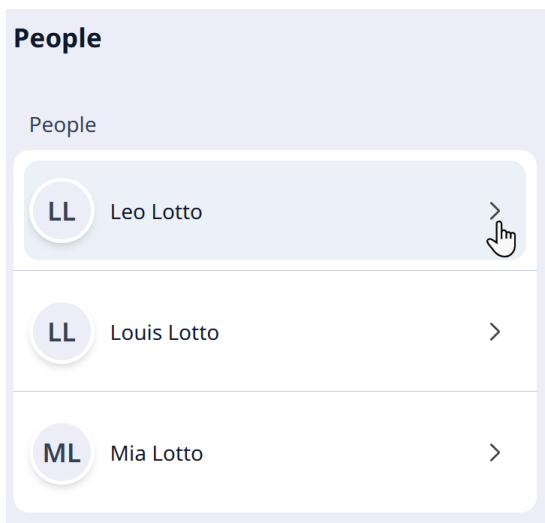

Step 1 - Choose a person in the People Tab

1. Log in to your Amilia personal account (My account).
2. Now, go to the People tab and select a person from the dropdown.

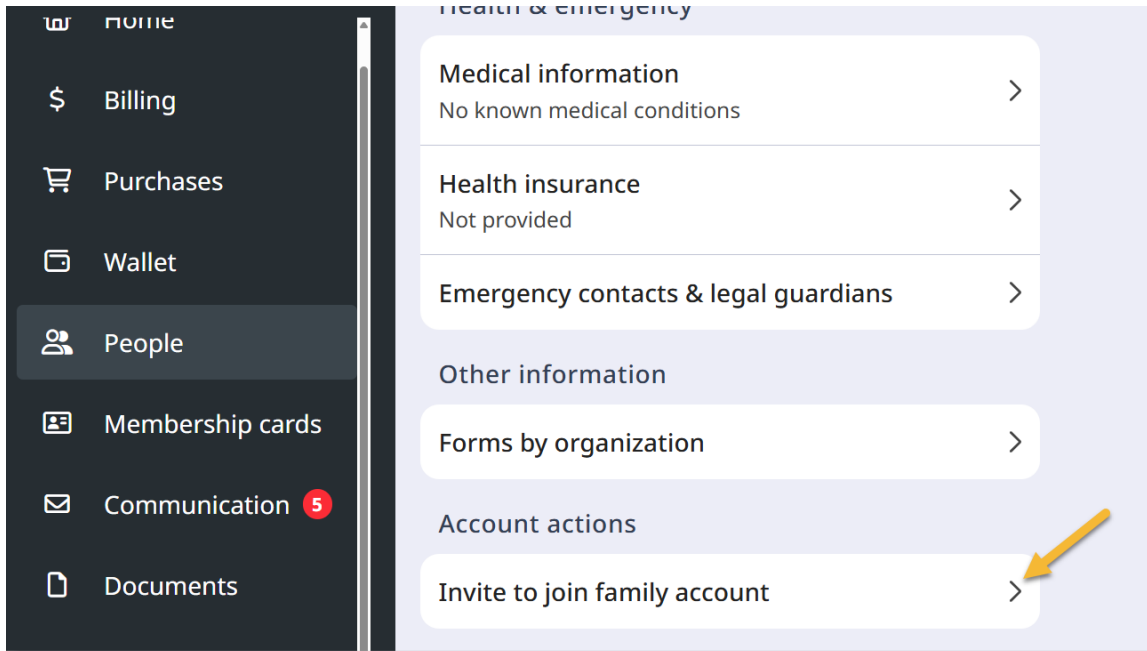

- ◆ If the person isn't in the account yet, click Add a person and provide their information to create their profile.

3. Once created in the account, click on the person's name to open their profile.

4. Scroll to the bottom of the page to the Account actions section. Click Invite to join family account.

Step 2 - Send invite to member

When you send a family account invitation, the process depends on whether the person you're inviting already has an Amilia profile. If they don't, they'll create one before joining. If they do, their existing profile will merge into your family account.

Invitations expire after 10 days, and the invitee must be at least 14 years old. If an invitation has expired, the account owner of the account can resend an invitation.
